British Keep Up Pressure on Rommel Units

temporarily military observers warned against too much optimism, pointing out the battle still is in its preliminary phases, and that both sides are merely jockeying for position.

Rommel, they said, has not yet suffered crippling losses to his armored strength and there is no indication he is trying to avoid a showdown.

On the other hand, these sources said, the Axis chief has brought up to the battle line vast supplies for an offensive—including sufficient gasoline to feed his mechanized forces for 10 days of hard fighting.

The R.A.F., aided by the United States army air force, kept these supply dumps under an almost constant hail of bombs.

8TH ARMY READY
 Dispatches from the front last night told of no large-scale action by the opposing land forces, but British armored units harassed and destroyed Axis elements, giving the enemy no chance to get set for battle, he evidently is trying to deliver.

The main body of Lt. Gen. B. Montgomery's 8th Army, however, remained poised, ready to hit back should Rommel make a mistake.

In Cairo the R.A.F. issued a statement declaring the Axis had lost 2,582 planes, and that the desert since start of the war, the United States had lost 1,563 planes.

Thus far this year, the statement said, British losses total 1,417 planes and British losses 1,114.

Major Nelles Buchanan Nominated by Liberals At Record Convention

most to the winning of this war, were outlined by Maj. Buchanan as two other vital "plans" in his platform.

J. Boyd McBride, K.C., was appointed secretary of the convention to take the place of Mr. Grant, who asked for release from his duties as secretary for the evening because of his intentions to stand for the candidacy.

Miss Blanche Webb, vice-president of the Edmonton Provincial Liberal Association, was selected returning officer.

Duncan Innes, Miss Laurette Carrigan and Mrs. E. Montgomery were appointed to the credential committee and Mrs. Marion Connolly, P. O'Connor, Thomas Cross and Gerard St. Germain made up the resolutions committee.

SIX RESOLUTIONS

Six resolutions presented by the committee were passed unanimously and amid applause. One resolution to Prime Minister Mackenzie King, assured him wholehearted support from the Edmonton Provincial Liberal Association in the international field and the other stated that the local association fully approved and endorsed Canadian war effort and policies which the Canadian parliament has put into effect in service of the war effort.

The resolution further urged that the government instruct legislation "to take steps it may deem advisable, in order to effect policies in the economic and financial fields, in essential and non-essential industries, to select manpower and womanpower, to control industries for the armed services of Canada where and whenever required."

The resolution further urged that all the resources of the Dominion be fully mobilized to enable Canada to take a leading part as one of the United Nations in achieving victory and insuring for the present and of future generations permanent peace and a democratic way of life.

A third resolution disapproved the action of the provincial government in denying the use of trucks for projects involved in essential war work.

PLEDGE SUPPORT, LOYALTY

Assurances of support and loyalty and greetings were forwarded to Hon. J. A. Macdonald and Mrs. Cora T. Caselman, as well as to representatives at Ottawa.

Similar assurances of loyalty and support were passed to the three provincial Liberal members, Capt. J. M. Tremblay, of Groulx, now overseas with the Edmonton Regiment; Hugh John Macdonald, K.C., Edmonton, and J. J. Bowen, Calgary.

Hugh John Macdonald spoke briefly and reminded the delegates that no party can be a success unless it is representative of the vastness of the walks of life, as is the Liberal Party in the province and in the Dominion.

Major Buchanan was nominated by F. O. Paterson, who stated that he had known him in sport, business, politics and in private life for about 35 years. He introduced Major Buchanan as a past president and past secretary of the Edmonton Provincial Liberal Association.

Mrs. A. Roberge nominated Mr. Grant, describing him as a man who has worked for Liberalism all his life and one who has shown keen interest in many fields of community activity.

The following took part in the convention proceedings:

NEIL D. MACLEAN, K.C., chairman of the convention; First of all I would like to explain to you the reason for us gathering here tonight.

Prior to the 1940 general election there were three Liberals, three Independents and one Conservative nominated. Of these Mr. Macdonald

Labor Priority Will Determine Job Placements

OTTAWA, Sept. 4.—(CP)—A labor priority schedule has been established by the federal government to determine what jobs may be taken by workers of new employment. Labor Minister Mitchell disclosed last night in an address to the House that a new manpower regulations.

Participating in a joint broadcast over the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation's national network with the Hon. Charles Dunning, Mr. Mitchell said that the new regulations do not freeze workers on their jobs.

But he said, workers who have their jobs and are being discharged must obtain permits from the employment office to seek new employment. The nature of that employment will be determined by the priority schedule grading industries according to their essentiality to the war effort.

ESSENTIAL NEEDS FIRST

"Under this plan, the most essential industries will get workers first such as aircraft, or in a certain locality, it might even be a certain plant," Mr. Mitchell explained.

He explained that the permit which lets him seek general employment in his town. Or, he might get a permit which says he can only seek work of a certain type, or in a certain industry, such as aircraft, or in a certain locality, it might even be a certain plant," Mr. Mitchell explained.

The priority schedule, drawn up in co-operation with the Munitions and Supply Department, and the War-time Prices and Trade Board, would be made public because the priority rating of various plants and industries would be constantly changing.

"For instance," Mr. Mitchell said, "in such a category as aircraft, it would have priority because it was needed to complete a tank shipment to the front. But tomorrow, when the order filed, something else would be a high priority rating."

EXPLAINS SYSTEM

Asked how employment permits are obtained, Mr. Mitchell said: "When a worker is discharged, the employer must fill out a separation notice on C-2 slip—three copies. Employer and employee each keep a copy and one is mailed by the employer to the government employment office. The employee continues working a week under the seven-day notice requirement during that time may go down to the employment office and obtain a permit to seek other employment."

Discussing compulsory registration of women, Mr. Mitchell said that registration did not necessarily mean a woman would have to work in a plant. A woman "getting three meals a day for a family of youngsters and seeing well-fed" obviously was doing an important war job already.

"But from now on," he said, "we can see that there is greater use made of women who are willing to work, who have wanted to but didn't know how to go about it, and whose employment would not cause excessive domestic problems."

A few weeks ago it had been realized that 253,000 men or women were needed to replace men taken into the armed forces and to fill new jobs being created by mushrooming war production. These workers had to be obtained from less essential industries and by employing more women because the number of employable unemployed was small.

"There are plants in this country that laughed a year ago at the idea of employing women," Mr. Mitchell said. "But they are proud of them now."

Widespread Arrests

VICHY, Sept. 4.—(AP)—The regional prefecture of Marseille and surrounding areas announced yesterday that it had made "widespread arrests" in a meeting of the so-called "incidents which could have had serious consequences."

The prefecture refused to specify the nature of the incidents or the number of arrests.

I cannot help but compare this convention with that held last night where three candidates were chosen. Who has the final choice in a convention of that sort? The choice lies in the shadow. Certainly that is not a democratic way of nominating.

Following the announcement of the successful candidate, Major Buchanan appeared in the delegates for an untiring support during the campaign and at the polls.

It is not an easy job to run as your candidate. I am not going to do it if I alone. There are enough in the audience tonight to settle the issue on the 22nd, provided that you all work, he said.

Fire Losses

TORONTO, Sept. 4.—(CP)—Fire losses in Canada for the week ended Aug. 29 were $460,000, compared with $180,000 last week and $103,825 for the corresponding week a year ago, the Monetary Times said yesterday. Losses since Jan. 1 were $122,581, compared with $102,740 for the same period last year.

WITH THIS R. C. A. F. SOMEWHERE IN SCOTLAND, Sept. 4.—(CP)—It's night time and the people of Britain are sleeping peacefully. The roar of aircraft overhead awakens them. Sometimes it's Jerry bombers, sometimes it's night fighters. But more often than not it is a British night fighter on patrol, scouting for intruders.

A lot of Canadians do this exacting work. At this airbase in Scotland you can see them at their wartime trade, a night job that lasts until dawn.

On the field, engines roar into life as the sun dries in the west. Doors flaps pull on long white stockings and breeches. The cold "upstairs" even in summer. Sandwiches and tea appear. The men take the first bite when the loudspeaker interrupts.

A German aircraft approaching from the southeast.

The crews put down cups. Seconds later they are in the planes climbing into the darkness. They fly headlighters, planes which give radar return, a head ache. Nobody says much about it.

Night fighting is an absorbing game and attracts the best type of pilot. They are in the line of volunteers. They must be men who are not afraid of the dark, who have complete faith in their instruments, and be ready to fly solely for the night.

Specialized training has been taken to it with great enthusiasm. Night fighting is a wing commander says, are confident the Germans will not now be able to attempt a raid without suffering severe losses in aircraft. The opinion is based on their intimate knowledge.

Commission to Hold Probe On Steel Dispute

OTTAWA, Sept. 4.—(CP)—Appointment of a three-man commission under the Industrial Disputes act to investigate wage disputes in the steel industry was announced late yesterday by Labor Minister Mitchell.

The minister's announcement followed the fourth of a series of conferences between Canadian Congress of Labor officials, representatives of the United Steel Workers of America and Mr. Mitchell on disputes which resulted in strike threats involving 8,000 workers at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and Sydney, N.S.

REACH AGREEMENT

The statement said "complete agreement" had been reached on the form of the commission and the terms of reference and the controversy now was on the way to a peaceful solution.

Details of the commission were decided on at two conferences held with the minister yesterday by A. F. Stodier, president of the Canadian Congress of Labor, and Pat Conroy, secretary-treasurer. Officials of the U.S.W.A., an eight-man delegation headed by C. H. Millard, N.S.

Paying and Buying

During the first eight months of the year, payments of city taxes in Edmonton amounted to $3,137,662, a gain of $154,734 from the figures of last year.

The total levy for 1942 amounts to around $3,900,000, including utility taxes, business taxes and estimated license fees. It seems fairly likely, therefore, that by the end of the year collections will show the levy, indicating a clearing-off of some arrears.

Sales of city land during the eight months totalled $24,135, a gain of nearly $2,000 over last year's figures. The sales represent a transfer of property from the non-taxable to the taxable class and an increase in the number of pockets from which future taxes will be drawn.

Edmonton property has ceased to be regarded as a liability and is now considered to be an asset. Those who own property are paying the current levy, and making some headway in working off arrears, while year by year collections from a number of non-owners are becoming obvious through the purchase of city-owned lots.

The payment of taxes and the buying of hitherto tax-exempt land is evidence of the recovery of public confidence in the future of the city, as well as of improved general conditions which have made the paying and buying possible.

There may be something in the Stockholm report that Hitler has had Streicher placed under arrest by the Gestapo, but there is internal evidence to support the rumor. The charge is said to be that Streicher embezzled party funds. Since, like other Nazi leaders, he has been engaged in robbing Jews and peoples in the occupied countries on behalf of the party, it is not strange if some of the stolen money stuck to his fingers. If Streicher were an honest man he would not be in the thievery chain of the party.

Mr. Grew is undoubtedly right in saying Japan can only be knocked out by hard fighting. And that is precisely the kind of fight that is being fought against it in the Solomons. The U.S. marines continue to extend their operations. On the eastern tip of New Guinea the Australians ousted the invaders from Milne Bay, Lae and Wau. The Chinese have recaptured all the territory gained by the enemy in his drive from Milne Bay. The Japanese bases from which Tokyo can be bombed. The "hard fighting" is going on—and going well.

1892—50 Years Ago

The clergymen of Calgary have sent to the mayor and town council a joint letter, calling attention to the fact nobody has been punished yet for the raid on the Calgary churches and asking that action be taken. It is signed by Rev. J. H. McCall, pastor of the Anglican church. It is understood that Father Lacombe, who was in town when the letter was drawn up, refused to sign it. A statement of the council will be called to deal with the letter; the signers will be asked to explain, if it is probable they will be asked to explain to the council the parties to be prosecuted and how to proceed.

Trying to Wage War of Ideas Without Any Ideas

Psychological Warfare of Allies Bogs Down in Confusion

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

What I have called the "theatre of the war" is that part of our struggle dealing with the form of major international policy and the propagandizing of them. We usually call it "propaganda" and go on to the Atlantic Charter, and the Four Freedoms. As a document of the Free World, it is just that, near to Canadian cities and homes.

The War Today

BY JOHN COLLINGWOOD READE
Rommel Seeks to Break From Confines of Quatara Tunnel

Rommel has struck. The extent to which his initial attacks may be developed will depend upon how they are met. If he finds the British south flank inadequately protected he will undoubtedly follow up any initial advantages he may win and make his greatest bid for victory in Egypt.

The British Eighth Army has been thoroughly overhauled. The new commander-in-chief has done a job of housecleaning and has replaced many commanders of brigades and divisions with new men. It was reported from Cairo that the enemy attack was anticipated, and there is no reason to suppose that it will be opposed with adequate strength, skill and precision.

Rommel's initial strategy is obviously to break out of the confines of the Quatara tunnel. It has been said that the open desert is a tactical paradise and a strategic despair. This is true, and Rommel hankers after the open desert, bringing above all things a tactician. His forces are extremely mobile and very well disciplined. Rommel himself is always in the thick of the fight and is capable of making judgments and lightning decisions which invariably turn out to be shrewdly conceived.

action, and in no sense can it be said that the British line has been pierced. Whichever side moves to the attack must of necessity traverse territory mined by its adversary.

Unless, of course, the adversary has left certain areas unmined for tactical purposes of his own. So far, it can only be said that Rommel has traversed an area of no mark land which may or may not have been heavily mined.

ATTACK STRANGELY TIMED
Rommel's attack in strategy timed, it might have been expected to coincide with a German break through to the Black Sea or a serious penetration of the Caucasus Mountains. The Germans never undertake haphazard operations from choice. But in this case an attack has been launched at a moment when the outcome of the campaign in the Caucasus is still very much in doubt.

It has been suggested, and with some reason, that Rommel has been so fearful of adverse changes in the relative strength of his own forces to those of the Allies. He has been getting reinforcements, but may have been led to believe that the Allied armies were being reinforced more rapidly, despite the greater distances involved.

The reinforcement of Malta, and the consequent loss of Junkers transport planes on their way from Greece, has probably retarded the stream of men and supplies reaching Libya. Allied forces, on the other hand, have recently been augmented by the arrival of American armored units, about two divisions of Polish troops equipped in Russia and additional units from the British Isles.

FRONT FIX LENGTH OF WAR
One of the difficulties which confront the British is their inability to move troops and supplies on the front. German aircraft flying out of Dakar can always spot large British convoys moving through the South Atlantic down the west coast of Africa. In this way, Rommel gets several weeks' notice of reinforcements due to arrive in Egypt and can act accordingly.

The enemy offensive launched against the British lines west of Tobruk this summer anticipated the arrival of strong British reinforcements by some weeks. But for the bitter struggle in the Knightbridge area, which was long drawn out, Rommel might have had Alexandria before new strength was brought up in support.

The fact is that the British were rushing convoys to Egypt with the intention of seizing the initiative and opening an offensive of their own. German intelligence was able to anticipate this, and Rommel decided to strike first, before the balance of power turned overwhelmingly against him.

Something of the same sort appears to be happening now. There is no doubt that upon the outcome of the present battle depends the length of the war.

While the loss of Egypt would not be fatal, it is probable that it would prolong the war by many months, whereas the decisive defeat of Rommel and the consequent extinction of Axis forces from the south shore of the Mediterranean would release a great deal of Allied strength and permit the organization of a major attack on German-held Europe from the western end of the landlocked sea.

HERE AS "OLD FAITHFUL"

by WALLACE REYBURN

Wallace Reyburn, war correspondent for the Montreal Standard, spent six and a half hours ashore with Canadian troops at Dieppe. The Regiment he went in with was the first to land and last to leave. Today's war correspondents aren't satisfied to write their dispatches from behind lines. They get right in there with the fighting men and share their hazards. Reyburn, who was injured by shrapnel, had to swim out with one to the landing-craft under a barrage of fire which the Germans were concentrating on the shore line. The first barges he clambered onto sank. He swam to another, only to find when he got into it that it was overloaded. A ship eventually took them off and out to a destroyer lying in mine or on shore.

London, Eng. (By Cable)—It was one o'clock in the morning and I'd just come back from Dieppe!

You've heard people describe to you "the most wonderful drive I ever had in my life". Maybe it was across Rockies or through Grand Canyon or just along Lakeshore Boulevard with a gale pounding huge waves up on to the roadway. But now I know definitely what is the most wonderful drive I ever had. There wasn't any beautiful scenery on this trip. It was through grimy docks of a South of England port!

My swim out from the beach with the Canadians had left me clad only in a pair of underpants, army boots and blanket which the ship's steward had wrapped round me. The press liaison officer met me at the gangplank as I came off and said "I've got a room for you at the hotel, the car's ready". We climbed into the press car and joined a huge convoy of army trucks taking Canadian troops out to their billets. I remember stretching back in my seat, lighting up a cigarette and feeling a surge of relief at being back on solid ground again.

I'd ridden in this Chev. many times before on interminable jaunts among troops in England, collecting material for articles on their training that led up to their grand showing at Dieppe.

Out there on the beaches and in the streets of Dieppe there had been moments when you wondered whether you would ever come through it alive and be back among old familiar things again.

But here I was on "Old Faithful" as we call her, once more, and I was I glad to be there!

● This personal despatch from Wallace Reyburn inspires General Motors to pay its humble tribute to the fighting men of the Dominion who gave their utmost at Dieppe. Such service as theirs cannot be emulated except in the very battle-smoke. But they were, and must be, supported, and General Motors of Canada—proud that the war equipment from its factories is to be found on every fighting front—pledges itself to produce that equipment to the last resource of its men and machines.

CANADIAN-BUILT GM WAR PRODUCTS ARE SERVING IN EVERY THEATRE OF WAR

Willkie Proves Solidarity of America at War

CAIRO, Sept. 4.—(AP)—Wendell Willkie proved himself yesterday as living proof that "there is no division in America on the question of winning this war and the establishment of a just peace after the war."

After a visit with United States forces near Cairo in which he told the soldiers to "jaw hell," Willkie held a press conference at the lobby of the United States military headquarters.

SPECIAL ENVOY
He described himself as "a special representative of President Roosevelt" and asserted one of his major reasons for being in the middle east and for going from here to Russia and China was to show the leaders of the various nations that he, the man who opposed President Roosevelt in the 1940 presidential campaign, was certain that the victory for the united nations was inevitable.

The days of Germany's glory are over," Willkie added.

"If I'm here as President Roosevelt's representative it is because 30,000,000 Americans are all behind the president to beat the Germans," Willkie said.

Willkie called attention to the vast productivity of the United States. He said he had seen 5,000 aircraft last month—more than all axis nations together—and will produce 10,000 a month a year from now.

BUD MORE SHIPS
He said also that America laid more ship bottoms last month than any other nation in the world.

Willkie, as he had done in talking with soldiers earlier yesterday, stressed at the press conference his opinion that the United States is "one of the most vital and important theatres of war."

He said he wanted all Americans to be aware of that fact and that he hoped the censors would let up on your boys more."

He remarked that he wished the censors were present. They were.

On the war in the desert, Willkie emphasized that he did not consider himself a military expert, but that he believed that Marshal Erwin Rommel was "out on the end of a limbo," and he believed that Rommel would be completely defeated "and fairly soon."

Willkie said he probably would see King Farouk Friday.

Hitler Peace Offer Is Seen By December

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—(AP)—Hitler wants peace and will get it this year, says a report from L. S. Young (Dem-Ohio) said yesterday.

"I am not the seventh son of a seventh son," said Young, before he made the unqualified prediction.

"Hitler will put out definite peace feelers before December. But proposals for peace coming from Berlin or Tokyo should and will be flatly refused. The war must go on to a knockout."

The Ohioan declared he was on "solid ground" that his surmise "did not come out of thin air."

"I have no prejudices to anywhere," he added in an interview, "but I have some basis for my forecast. It came from a source that deserves consideration."

Uncle Sam, more alert than ever to the danger of saboteurs landing by U-boat, is now experimenting with horses for beach patrolmen in the Coast Guard—as shown above. Mounted guards are expected to cover a greater amount of territory and do it more efficiently. A Coast Guardsman in a beach lifeboat is shown chatting with one of the new mounts.

NEW OPTIMISM

Canada's Northwest Heads Steadily Toward Objective Dreamed About for Years

By D'ARCY MARSH
Written for British United Press

The incandescent optimism of Canada's northwest, which flared up ten years ago and seemed to fade, is burning brightly again, and with a more steady flame.

The dream of building a permanent and self-contained peace farming community in the Peace River and northern Saskatchewan is materializing, as a result of the present war.

Moreover, it is not the result of efforts to create a community artificially, as a consequence of the war, as it was in 1932 and 1933, but of a vaster reorganization of the whole economic and social life of the dominion—a reorganization which is already establishing itself around the farm of the future in northern Quebec and is revolutionizing the balance of our agricultural output.

POPULATION CHANGES
More than this, these changes are likely to effect, and to be affected by, the great movements of population which are being wrought by the necessities of war industry, details of which are still a military secret—in the Pacific northwest, around Prince Rupert, B.C., in the area surrounding Churchill and the Pas in Manitoba, and in certain mining districts where war industries are being established under cover.

During the past twelve months, railway officials have recorded definite increases in the total number of families moving into northern Quebec, where 103 new communities have sprung up in the past few years for the special purpose of diversifying farming.

In regard to the northwest, a more static condition exists, but the situation reports are being brought to light to dispel the illusion of partial failure created by the loss of the prairie provinces in the past decade the prairie provinces.

One important problem faces the west, however, and that arises from the danger that, while the enforced drainage in grain output is helping to develop the mixed farming which now appears to be the solution of value in the west, the war is, inevitably, artificially stimulating hog production and thus threatening to throw the balance out in a new direction.

It is not of use for the west to take most of her eggs out of one basket and put them all into another.

The hope that such a development will be averted lies in the present tendency to build up two and a half farming activities with hog production, a tendency never present to any great extent in the days of the wheat boom.

NEW PROSPECTS
In southern and south western Alberta new prospects are opening up for sheep farmers, who previously have produced only about 4,000,000 head of sheep a year, almost the same total as that of Montana. The shepherds are being forced out of the Tuley area of east Alberta because of national defense needs, but they are establishing themselves in force upon the sub-marginal lands in the west of the province where, because of the present domestic demand, they hope to build up an industry which will grow after the war.

The present tendencies are toward a new type of Canadian farming, which will make the country less internationally dependent than it has been, and which will also open up the lands in east and west whose value in ore and hydro-electric wealth, so much in evidence in the west, is in itself, is being established.

RECOVER Vet's Body

Women Respond
Large Numbers Army Service

The recruiting drive which the Canadian Women's Army Corps launched across Canada the beginning of August, went over the top in Alberta, the province for Military District No. 13 of 125 having been attained. It was announced today by Capt. Pearl B. C.W.A.C. staff officer, M.D. No. 13.

The quota for September has not yet been reached, but it is expected that it will be equally as high as the C.W.A.C. expects to reach a total strength of 10,000 by the time next year, so recruiting is continuing daily at all the principal centres in the province and medical boards are also being held every day. In recruiting parties are being sent to visit a number of points throughout the province again during the month of September.

TRADES REQUIRED
All trades are required according to Capt. Brent, with stenographers and typists being urgently needed.

While only girls in categories A, B and C are being accepted, the percentage of rejection is very low. Capt. Brent announced that the second class at the C.W.A.C. training centre in western Canada, located at Vermilion, will open next Monday morning, with another enrollment of approximately 200.

The parade of the last graduating class, which took place here, attracted so much attention that it has been decided to hold a similar parade after graduation.

Plan to Start War Services Girls' Classes
Special training classes for girls in War Services Preliminary training will commence at the Edmonton Technical school Sept. 14. If sufficient girls enroll, Russ S. Sheppard, superintendent of schools, announced Friday.

Mr. Sheppard stated that the Edmonton public school board decided to continue the classes this year in view of the splendid results attained by girls who attended the classes last year, provided that the enrollment warrants.

It was reported at the board at the last meeting that out of 238 girls who attended the classes last year, 200 were able to obtain employment of a type where their training was found useful.

Last year's classes were held during the day at the Technical school under the supervision of Mr. J. Hillon, school principal. The girls graduated in three groups throughout the year, the first one completing its course in the fall, the second in early spring and the last in the late spring.

Mr. Sheppard stated that girls who plan on taking the War Services Preliminary training course should get in touch with Mr. Hillon, principal of the Technical school, immediately. He stated that the response to registration at an early date will determine the size of the classes to be held this school term.

By WILLIAM STEWART
SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Sept. 4.—In the camp of a Canadian light anti-aircraft regiment on the south coast, they reported that the Canadian raiding force, which they were formed in part were left short-handed—so it might have been except for those motorbike riders, cooks, clerks and mechanics.

Some of the raiding force were sent to a special job. And while these men were away the gun crews continued to work on the motorbike riders, cooks, clerks and mechanics.

Sturgeon Health Unit Plans Aid

The Sturgeon health unit, contiguous to this city and serving 22,000 persons, will supply vitamin capsules free of charge to all school children in the health district this winter. It is planned to assure that each of the 3,600 pupils obtain a proper nutritional requirement of the essential vitamins and minerals. The pupils will receive a capsule each school day for 100 days during the months when these vitamins and minerals are most required and least obtainable in the ordinary diet, namely, from November until April.

Van Clegg of Vancouver, who took part of his gun crew to Dieppe but didn't get much work done there, made up for it in the sea. A few days after the Dieppers returned, two FW-190s ran over the regiment's lines in a hit-and-run raid. Both planes dropped anti-personnel bombs and cannonaded and machine-gunned people on the ground, but only one of them got away. Clegg's crew got the other with 15 rounds from a Bofors. The Nazi went off smoking and plunged into the sea.

Among members of a sharpshooting crew was Gnr. L. F. Kirk, Rimby, Alta.

former Calgary, Edmonton and Vancouver football star, was among others who quickly got their makeshift gun crews together.

The barrage those riders, cooks, clerks and mechanics put up—there were sixteen, says Anderson—brought from a visiting Air Raid Precautions official this tribute: "This is fine as anything London used to put up." Andy said he was leashed up everything but his old pair of boots.

Indeed it must have been so, because when they finished they had downed three JU-88s, probably shot up a fourth and damaged a fifth. In addition they aimed the tail of a ME-109.

John B. Gillies Is Named Social Credit Candidate For By-Election Contest

John B. Gillies was named Social Credit candidate to contest the Sept. 22 provincial by-election when the Social Credit party's selection committee met Thursday night to name its standard-bearer. Mr. Gillies, who is first vice-president of the Edmonton constituency Social Credit Association, was chosen from a panel of three nominees selected at the nominating convention held Wednesday night.

Those contesting the final nomination with Mr. Gillies were Rev. F. W. Williams, second vice-president of the Edmonton constituency Social Credit Association, and Robert A. Canison, chief agent, who is an employee of the Social Credit Board.

At Wednesday's Social Credit nominating convention, three nominees were chosen by 17 accredited delegates representing all organized Social Credit groups in the city.

These three names were placed before the selections committee Thursday. Those voting in the final selection of a candidate were representatives of eight Social Credit divisions in the city which embrace all organized groups.

ADVISORY BOARD
A present when the final selection of the candidates was made was the advisory board, consisting of Premier William Aberhart, Hon. J. Macdonald, minister of municipal affairs, Hon. N. E. Tanner, minister of lands and mines, and Chris Kennedy, minister of health.

It was explained that the advisory committee investigates the qualifications of every nominee before making the final choice of a candidate who will represent Social Credit policies in the election.

Interviewed Thursday night, Mr. Gillies said he was very proud to have been named as the party's candidate.

"Ever since coming to this country I have been interested in the reform movement... a movement established to bring about social security and democratic freedom," Mr. Gillies declared. "To the best of my ability I will give Social Credit policies during the by-election campaign."

Born in Alexandria, Dumbartonshire, Scotland, Mr. Gillies first came to Edmonton 27 years ago. After a year spent here, he returned to Scotland to bring his family back with him.

Mr. Gillies declared that he had always been interested in home building projects. As a builder, craftsman in Scotland he was instrumental in constructing dwellings valued at $800,000.

He is now chairman of the Edmonton Co-operative Building Association, which was incorporated to provide the working man with an opportunity of earning with an opportunity of earning.

Plan to Start Wider Field Service Recruit Office Opens for Women With Many Recruits Needed

Opening up a wide, new field of service in the women's division of the R.C.A.F., training classes for stenographers, under the War Emergency Training Plan, may start in Edmonton soon, it was announced Friday by Fit. Lt. W. Paul Graham, officer commanding No. 3 Recruiting Centre, R.C.A.F.

I Saw Today
Fitting Lt. Graham said that he was planning to open classes here as soon as a sufficient number of young women express interest in the plan.

It is felt that the proposed classes, which will be applied to women for the first time, will provide opportunity to acquire an expert knowledge of stenography, shorthand and typing.

Young men have been receiving pre-entry training under the W.E.T.P. for many months and the classes are now regarded as a vital part of training for duty with the air force.

General qualifications for enlistment in the R.C.A.F. (Women's Division) are necessary to enroll for the W.E.T.P. classes.

NEED BRITISH GIRLS
It is desired to attract bright, intelligent girls who will apply themselves diligently to the course in view of the urgent need for trained stenographers in the service.

The course will be of 20 weeks duration and training will continue to live with relatives or friends in the city while studying.

Young women who are interested should call at the R.C.A.F. recruiting office, 100 St. James' Building, and obtain further particulars from Sgt. Marjorie Rice.

Office hours are from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on weekdays, and from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturdays. On Monday and Tuesday evenings the office is open from 7 to 10 p.m.

As officers here are eager to have the classes commenced as soon as possible, young women who are interested should make application without delay.

Announcement is also made that the trade of wireless operator ground is now open to enlistment in the R.C.A.F. (W.D.).

Hauling Suspended on Two District Projects; Rates Are Criticized

As the tie-up in truck operations on provincial highway and Edmonton airport work continued Friday in protest against recent road restrictions imposed by the provincial government, Hon. W. A. Fallow, minister of public works, declared the new regulations fixing load and speed limits were fair.

About 50 trucks were off work Friday on two projects—construction of a four-mile stretch on the Jasper highway just west of Edmonton and the city airport extension.

The minister claimed the root of the trouble was not in the new regulations but in the prior truck etc. were receiving for hauling work. He stated the rates paid by contractors were too low.

Regulations recently adopted by the Alberta Highway Traffic Board fix 30,000 pounds as the load limit for trucks traveling on provincial highways. The speed limit is set at 30 miles an hour for all trucks with the exception of light panel delivery vehicles or trucks with a manufacturer's load rating of three-quarters of a ton or less.

AXLE LIMIT
A load limit of 15,000 pounds per axle is set for provincial highways. Continued on Page Sixteen

Getting Around with Jack DeLong

Dr. Hans Elias of Middlesex University is no optimist. According to news story from Chicago, Dr. Elias predicts that there will be plenty tough in America after the war.

He is quoted as saying: "There will be no cars, radios, washing machines or refrigerators in the world that will exist after the war. The masses of the people will be impoverished by the burdens which the war imposes upon everyone."

He contends there will be no export industry because countries abroad are already completely exhausted. There will be practically no import trade, because whatever the destroyed countries produce they will need for themselves. And he shall no longer be wealthy enough to buy more than we need, according to Prof. "Gloomy" Elias.

Women, Dr. Elias predicts, will go back to the spinning wheel of grandma's day, in order to keep up with the sombre feminine styles of the future.

September Bride-Elect Honored At Several Informal Affairs

Two brides-elect of September, Miss Marianne Pearson and Miss Elsie McCall, were guests of honor at a tea at the home of Mrs. F. H. Norbury on Thursday afternoon when members of a reading club, of which their mothers, Mrs. Robert Pearson and Mrs. F. S. McCall, are members, were present. Mrs. Max Ball, president, and Mrs. William Johnstone assisted the hostess with serving. During the afternoon, the honored guests were the recipients of gifts as remembrances from the club. Gladioli, snapdragons and stocks decorated the rooms for the occasion.

Mrs. J. Morris Appointed to Council Post

Announcement was made Friday of the appointment of Mrs. J. H. Morris to the position of chairman of the Information Bureau of the Council of War Service Auxiliaries. Mrs. Morris succeeds Mrs. C. V. Dacre, who has taken a position at Bowden, Alta., with No. 32 P.T.S.

Executive members of the council met at the Tregler building on Thursday, when they appointed Mrs. Morris, Mr. Frank Pike, president, was in the chair.

Lads on leave go to the Information Bureau when they wish to spend their leave in a private home, and do not know many people in the city.

The Bureau also assists the Service Club to arrange their concerts and other entertainments.

First "Wrens" Enjoy Life At Ottawa Training Centre

BY ISABEL ALLAN

OTTAWA, Sept. 4.—(CP)—The first group of girls of the H.M.C.S. Kingsmill, training school for the Women's Royal Canadian Naval Service, which was launched last Monday without benefit of champagne or liquor.

The first school of its kind in Canada, Kingsmill is a spacious home designed with high ceilings, cream-colored walls, and mullioned windows, and firmly anchored in large grounds on Laurier avenue.

Here in the large bright rooms, decorated in cream and hung with gay chintzes or royal blue drapes, the first "wrens" have been housed. They are now being trained in the garage, now converted into a long low school room, with eggshell colored walls and big windows.

In the big, high-ceilinged kitchen, it's a man who reigns supreme—Pete Officer R. Murray. He has the message job of teaching seven ratings how to dish up the ratings in navy style.

4-Year Old Girl Is First Woman Guide

BANFF, Alta., Sept. 4.—(CP)—A 4-year-old girl, Donna Johnstone, is making history in the Canadian Rockies, as the first of Canada's first women guides.

The hardy, weather-beaten little girl, who is a guide to tourists, miners, explorers over the high peaks of the Rocky Mountains, has always been a natural leader. She has always led her mother and her father on their hikes, and she's done such a good job that they're looking around for more girls born in saddle leather.

Donna's a veteran who can ride anything, alone, in horse field. Her ranching father, Lawrie Johnstone, at their home in the Ghost River area near Cochrane, Alta., put her on a horse before she could walk. She was an expert rider when she had to go to school, and she's been riding ever since. When he guided hunting and camping parties up the Ghost River into the Rockies.

A WELCOME FOR "RUBBER MAN"

Here's one resident who isn't going to let those old hot water bottles, bathing caps and ties hang around all winter. From August 24 to September 8, rural mail couriers in Ontario and Quebec will act as rubber stamp collectors. Here's another lot of rubber that will hit back at Hitler.

Jean McCallum George Bates Are Married

KEEPING with wartime simplicity was the wedding ceremony of Jean McCallum and George Bates, Thursday evening at First Baptist church, of Jean Morris, only daughter of Mr. Archibald McCallum and the late Mrs. McCallum of Edmonton, and Mr. George M. Bates, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Bates of Winnipeg. The Rev. Daniel Young officiated.

The church was arranged attractively with large bouquets of gladioli, asters and sweetpeas in various shades.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride made a pretty picture in her frock of turquoise blue crepe with full length coat of the same material to match her accessories. The bride and groom were escorted by the bridesmaids and groomsmen. The couple were welcomed by the bride's parents. The ceremony was held at 7:30 p.m.

Canuck Sailors Take Presents To Old Country

HALIFAX, Sept. 4.—(CP)—Sailors who sailed to the old country to visit their families, are taking presents to the old country. The sailors are taking presents to the old country. The sailors are taking presents to the old country.

In fact, sailors headed for the Old Country have bought so many presents for their families, that the Royal Canadian Navy could probably give five times as many presents as it has. The sailors are taking presents to the old country.

KNOWS THE TERMS

When it comes to intimate terms, no clerk can give him the run-around. The clerk is a little definite about size of undies—either he wears the lingo down—but that never stops a resourceful far. It even comes to work his hands the protesting salesman behind the counter, gives her a critical once over and says, "ah, she's about your size but a little bigger." They are especially careful of their "underwear" and "stockings." They want certain shades, textures and scents, and will take the time to explain why. After all, they say, "we're the girls that gotta wear 'em," and they know.

HERE'S LEATHERNECKS IN ACTION

Spot Pictures Show U.S. Marines Capturing Solomons

Men overboard in a manner that bodes ill for Japs on isle of Guadalcanal in Solomon islands. U. S. Marines clamber down net from transport to new-type steel landing barges.

All ashore so coolly and calmly you'd think this was just another practice landing. It isn't. It's a real action photo showing Uncle Sam's tough leathernecks beaching their invasion barges on Guadalcanal. These spectacular spot photos were taken by Sherman Montrose, formerly San Francisco bureau manager for NEA Service-Acme Newspictures who accompanied Marines.

MONTROSE

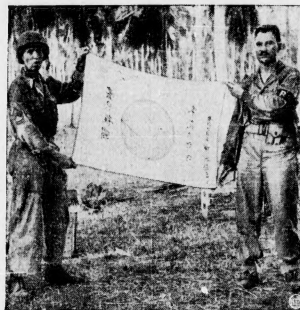

MILLER

Press Captures First Jap—Two U. S. newsmen who accompanied U. S. Marine assault on Guadalcanal Island share credit for capturing the first Jap prisoner. BUP correspondent Robert C. Miller, accompanied by war correspondent photographer Sherman Montrose, came across a Jap hiding in a tent. Montrose, former San Francisco bureau manager for NEA Service-Acme Newspictures, took the series of spectacular spot photos which thrillingly illustrated the story of the attack.

Tanks aplenty rolled ashore from new Marine Corps tanker lighters which got their first combat test on Guadalcanal Island. Here's one, with Marines in background, awaiting order to advance.

First trophy captured is this Jap battle flag, proudly displayed by two of the Marines who took it from Japs on Guadalcanal Island.

Hide and seek until death ends the game. Photo shows Marine mopping-up party combing through palm jungles of Guadalcanal Island. Most Japs had fled, but mopping-uppers potted snipers.

Spotted fever in the skies for Jap aviators who made desperate "suicide" assaults on transports during Marine attack on Guadalcanal Island. Photo shows shell-bursts from U. S. warships' murderous anti-aircraft fire that blasted Japs from air.

Thank you, Mr. Moto, for fixing up Guadalcanal's fine airport, with its 1,400-yard runway. U. S. flyers for whom Marines captured it, will find it handy. Photo taken by Sherman Montrose, former San Francisco bureau manager for NEA Service-Acme Newspictures.

S-S-Sorry, Mr. Jap, that a U. S. shell toppled this palm tree on your nice auto. If you are hiding in there you'd better come out—that U. S. Marine with the Tommy gun isn't a very patient guy when it comes to arguing with Nips.

Led Marine Attack

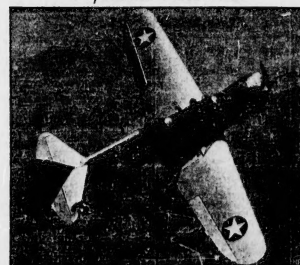

Maj. Gen. Alexander A. Vandergrift, above, is commander of the U.S. Marines now mopping up Japs on the Solomon Islands. His toughest smashed Jap counter-attack, killing 670 out of 700.

Lt. Col. E. F. Carlson, above, headed the group of U.S. Marines who landed on Makin Island, one of the Gilbert group, and destroyed Jap seaplane base and other installations.

Plywood Takes Air

Even the Army has to save on strategic metals these days. The above plane, developed by the Ryan Aeronautical Co., San Diego, Calif., is a new plastic-bonded plywood model for military training. Metals account for less than 2 per cent of the plane's total weight.

Plotters extraordinary are these two fighters, pictured as they planned U. S. attack on Guadalcanal in Solomon Islands battle. They are Rear Admiral R. K. Turner, left, Navy commander, and Maj. Gen. A. A. Vandergrift, who commanded the Marine force.

When a Girl Marries

By RENE RYERSON MART

CHAPTER XV

SHE could pretend to herself—and nearly succeed in believing—that she was doing matter-of-factly an errand that had to be done. Her month's rent on the Arlington apartment was up, and she had to hand over the key.

But her heart wasn't fooled by this elaborate self-justification. She was singing because she was going to see Hank Holliday again very shortly—and maybe a miracle would happen. Maybe, somehow, fate at last smiling on her, would make it possible for her to go on seeing Hank although her trust money was over.

Upon arrival at her destination, Enid told the taxi driver that he needed a bath. It was the same time to pack. She could call an other cab when she was ready to leave—or maybe Hank would drive her home.

She went into the apartment that had been her home for three happy weeks, and packed her clothes and jewelry around to see that everything in the apartment was just as it had been when she had rented it. Then she set her bag out in the hall, locked the door, and went down the corridor to Hank Holliday's apartment.

She pressed his doorbell and waited, her blood pounding dully in her head. But the door didn't open, and Hank didn't smile at her from the doorway. There was no sound at all from within his apartment.

Enid pressed the bell again with some urgency. The possibility of his not being at home simply hadn't occurred to her. In the silence she heard footsteps shuffling up the back stairs from the basement, and the next moment Jim, the janitor, appeared in the rear of the corridor.

He grinned as he recognized Enid. "Oh, it's you, Miss Sharon. The doctor's not here."

"Oh—", Enid's voice was limp, almost dead. She wasn't going to see Hank, at least not tonight, and for a moment she couldn't think because of the disappointment of that. Jim came up to her and she handed him the key mechanically. "I'm moving," she explained. "Here's the apartment key. Will you give it to the doctor?"

"He don't been askin' me where you bin this la' week," Jim volunteered cheerfully. "My father and mother met with an accident," she said absently. "I've been with them."

Hank had been asking about her, she had heard her. She couldn't just walk out this way without seeing him, and letting him know where she was.

"Wait a minute," she said briskly, reaching a decision. She delivered her name, found a memorandum book, tore out a sheet, and began to write. "I'll leave my new address with you, Jim, in case any mail comes here for me."

And Jim, in case any mail comes here for me, was a little more than none. Of course, there would not be any mail for her, she knew that, for none of her friends had this address, but Hank would ask said his mother wanted him to marry.

The garbulous Jim breezed on. "It's too bad you're missin' seein' the doctor. He jest left yesterday. Went for a trip with his mother and Miss Adams."

Enid stopped writing. Hank had gone with his mother—and Clara Adams. The beautiful, arrogant, redheaded Clara, the girl he had said his mother wanted him to marry.

She tore the scrap of paper on which she had been writing to bits. How silly she had been, thinking that he might want to see her again—might even go to the bother of looking her up.

"What's the matter, Miss Sharon? That your new address don't do for you?"

"It doesn't matter, Jim. I won't bother you with it. I forgot to tell the post office what I forward my mail."

She gave Jim a nervous tip and asked him to call a taxi for her. She would wait for him to bring the taxi out front to wait for her arrival.

The nerve-racking cliche-click of his typewriter pounded on Enid's aching head like so many little steel mallets driving into her brain.

Laff-A-Day

Curious World —By William Ferguson

She stopped her own machine for a moment and pressed one hand against her forehead. Her skin felt dry and hot. She hated to take another aspirin, she'd taken so many of them during the last few weeks. For the head aches continued. And she felt tired, exhausted.

She'd thought at first that it was the reaction from that week-long visit in the hospital with her father. But it hadn't worn off, and she'd been back at work a month now. Maybe she was going to be sick. Maybe she'd better see a doctor. At that last thought her lips curled in a bitter little smile.

See a doctor? Yes, if it was the right doctor, that cure her trouble, she told herself with ironic honesty. But the joke did not stop the wave of acute longing that swept over her at the thought of Hank Holliday.

And after a moment she raised her head and stared unseeingly at the undisturbed letter before her. Why not go to see him? She really was unwell. She had a perfectly legitimate excuse for going to his office.

With a flurry of renewed energy she attacked the remaining letter on her desk.

She didn't know what office hours young Dr. Holliday kept. She did know that many of the surgeons and specialists in the street, the town's medical centre, were 'in' all afternoon. So there was a chance, if she hurried, that she might see Hank before he left his office for the day.

And luck was almost with her. She had reached the corner opposite the long stucco building, where the Hollidays, senior and junior, had their offices, when she was delayed momentarily by traffic light. As she waited for the signal to change she saw two men come out of the entrance of the building across the street and hurry to an automobile waiting at the curb.

Almost instantly Enid recognized the younger of the two men as Hank. She looked eagerly at the automobile, but it came across the intersection toward her, but his eyes intent on traffic, busy at that hour, did not see the girl smiling and waiting at the curb.

And yet, oddly enough, Enid was not altogether disappointed. Just seeing him for that brief moment had done something to her. She made energetic plans and retraced her steps to the main street and waited for a northbound bus.

She'd get off a half hour early the next evening and then she'd catch Hank before he left his office. She'd been awfully silly, she decided, cutting herself off from him the way she had when they lived in the same town, and seeing him just a simple matter. And probably she had grossly exaggerated the importance of the trip he had taken with his mother and the beautiful Miss Adams.

It was an almost happy girl who boarded the bus when it came. It takes such little things to alter an outlook, a future. Little things like idly reading a newspaper over a man's shoulder while he was away and lurched on the way.

Mom and Pop were already seated at the table eating when she arrived. Enid forced herself to smile.

"Do you mind, Mom, if I don't eat now? I'm so hot and tired."

She lay across the cool-sheeted bed and tried to stop her nervous trembling. It had been a shock seeing Clara Adams' picture staring at her from that newspaper in the main hall.

A large picture filling seven columns across the top of the society page and lazing in black and white none of the beauty of those chiselled features, the arrogant poise of the lovely head.

"To Wed Doctor," the headline below it had read.

Enid hadn't seen any more, turning her eyes blindly away, not wanting to see that hateful, triumphant face, not wanting to know the details of the coming wedding.

She tried to bolster herself with pride. She was glad now that she had missed seeing Hank at his office. At least she had spared the humiliation of having thrown herself at him.

Mont Blanc
IS NEITHER IN SWITZERLAND NOR ITALY

Many tourists have expected to find Mont Blanc in Switzerland; others, in Italy. It is not in either country; it lies entirely in France. Most Blanc is the highest mountain peak in the Alps and rises 15,781 feet in the air. It is said that even Mount was surprised a few years ago to learn that this famous peak was not in its country, but in France.

Fantastic trappings that recall knights of the Middle Ages are worn by horsemen of some of the Dribbles of the Niger region of Africa. The uniforms of the steeds and their riders are galloped by hand mallets, while the helmets are of sheet iron and copper.

NO EFFECT ON WAR POLICY

Spanish Shakeup Believed Result Political Crisis Within Country

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG

LONDON, Sept. 4.—

(BUP)—Foreign sources

reported today that Gen. Francisco Franco's shakeup of the Spanish government stemmed from an internal political crisis and they doubted that it would affect Spain's policy toward the war.

According to these sources the crisis arose because of conflict between the Spanish army and the Falangist political party, headed by Ramon Serrano Suner, their foreign minister and warther-liner of Franco.

The crisis was said to have come to a head over the bombing outrage at Bilbao three weeks ago when a group of 377 Falangist members met in a plenary session which was being addressed by an army officer.

About 30 persons were killed.

GROUP ARRESTED

It was reported that a group of Falangists were seized in the attack. Serrano Suner and other Falangists were said to have demanded their release.

Li-Gen. Jose Enrique Varela, dismissed by Franco, was said to have led the army in demanding punishment of the Falangists and imposition of at least one death penalty.

This dispute, it was said, brought to a head simmering bitterness between the army and the Falangist party, which reported to have shaken up the government in order to restore control of the government, the Falangist and the army in its own hands.

It was thought by these foreign sources that the removal of Serrano Suner may eliminate the source of a good many extraneous elements against the Allies. It was also thought that the move would to some extent though it was doubtful that any move to restore a Bourbon throne would be undertaken until after the war.

German broadcasts showed plainly that the reorganization which eliminated Ramon Serrano Suner, Franco's brother-in-law, who was foreign minister, and who carried the Falangist party, had been the Nazis' hope.

NAZIS COVER UP

Germany reported also that Li-Gen. Jose Enrique Varela, who lost his war minister post, had been replaced by Gen. Carlos Arsenio Cagigal, had resigned his post.

It was nearly 12 hours before the official German news agency blandly said:

"The reshuffle of the Spanish government did not come as a surprise to German foreign office. It was since they had been kept advised as to the developments which led up to the reshuffle of new personnel."

German emphasis that Franco's shakeup would not involve any change in Spanish foreign policy was expressing a hope rather than a belief.

Berlin noted that the reorganization was along the lines of recent Franco policy because the army leader in the government and politics was a regular Francoist. The change of the presidency of the Falangist party, Berlin said, was a move that there must not be different opinions or movements within this "Nationalist movement."

U.S-BRITISH TALKS

Radio Paris, Franco controlled, reported that Carlos J. Hayes, left Madrid for Gibraltar, for important military and political talks with British authorities.

Political observers here suggested that Serrano Suner's fall had been precipitated by the turn of America toward the allies.

Entry of the United States into the war weakened Serrano Suner, it was said, but he had always been tied closely to Britain.

Then Mexico's entry weakened his position further, it was said, and he held that the Mexican government was opposed to the Franco regime.

Brazil's entry, and Portugal's announcement of solidarity with Brazil, brought the suggested, because it meant that the turn against the axis was assumed.

United Press Madrid dispatches reported that the cabinet reshuffle insured greater unity in government.

STRENGTHENS FRANCE

United Press correspondents who have lived long in Spain interpreted the changes as a move to strengthen the Franco position.

People who believe that the only man capable of protecting them from the ambitions of Hitler and Stalin are said to be Serrano Suner and the German.

Warbirds on Wing

Seen across the tail of a British warplane roaring into action, Blenheim bombers made a formidable sight as they head for another raid on Rommel on the Middle East war zone.

The food corporation "will, accordingly," said the statement, "the board has carefully reviewed the whole situation and made recommendations to the government which decided upon a complete change of policy, making War Food Corporation the sole exporter and at the same time assuring not less than ceiling prices to producers."

Americans Get Many Supplies From Australia

CANBERRA, Sept. 4.—(BUP)—

Prime Minister John Curtin revealed in detail today that though Australia is receiving the bulk of her essential war requirements from the United States under the Lend-Lease agreement, the Commonwealth is providing American forces here with numerous supplies and services.

Under reciprocal Lend-Lease, Curtin said, Australia is aiding U.S. naval, army, air force and supply services stationed in Australia.

A few of the supplies or services listed by Curtin were:

Army—Provision of camp accommodations and general camp services, including transportation of stores, as well as help in establishing American military hospitals.

Air Force—Donation of all R.A.F. fields and installations to American forces and insurance of a major construction program to provide additional air fields and air assembling depots.

Supply Department—Contribution of necessary buy cattle, motor vehicles, electrical equipment and foodstuffs not included in regular American supplies, as well as transportation for all U.S. personnel and supplies.

The prime minister said the flow of lend-lease supplies to Australia has greatly increased and included aircraft, tanks, guns, motor vehicles, machinery and other material.

More important than the lend-lease is the direct aid we have received from the United States," Curtin said, "the presence of the United States forces in and near Australia, and the fact that the United States is at the moment on the Coral Sea, at Midway, and on the Solomon has been of vital importance to Australia."
